PRESIDENT'S COLUMN

The marriage of words into meaningful writing has never been my forte. I can conceive of ideas, but, I am not always capable of transposing them into the written word. However, I shall do my best. Hopefully, some of the seeds that I sow will take root and our garden will grow and bear fruit.

As I emerge through the parting curtains, I come to the realization that I have a tough act to follow. I am simply "No Bob Spence". Beyond any question, our Society has been fortunate to have been endowed with his dedication and leadership. We are indeed fortunate that he is with us as the Editor of The Check Collector. As of this moment, John O'Hare is our vice-president, Mike Zier is our treasurer and Coleman Leifer is our new secretary. To those who have previously held office and performed so well, the Society is truly grateful.

To those who have just joined the cast, your audience awaits you. Be assured that you have a receptive audience that will truly appreciate your efforts. You may not hear the applause, but, you may be certain that it is there.

As for myself, I have some thoughts that I hope to turn into action. I am not one who hesitates to try something because it has not been done before. If I undertake something that is new, I shall earnestly solicit your support. This does not mean that I am entitled to go on my merry way unsupervised by those to whom I am rightfully accountable. I really want to hear from the membership, and, I must repeat that your disapproval of anything that I may do should be made clear to me in no uncertain terms.

To be sure, there is a wellspring of goodness and enjoyment that is inherent in our hobby. To pursue it is to enrich ourselves with knowledge as we share our gleanings with our fellow hobbyist.

Join the fun!

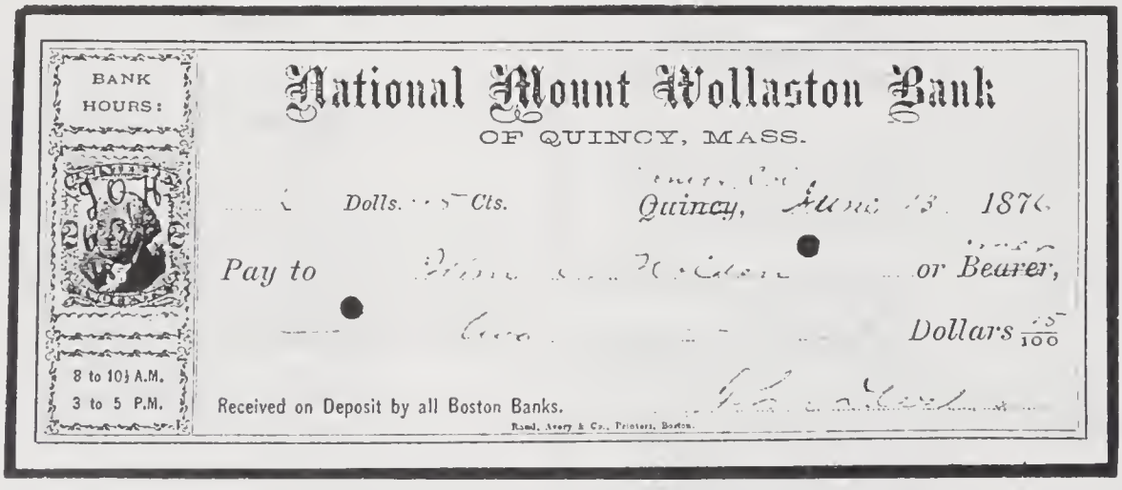
The National Mount Wollaston Bank of Quincy Mass.

by Herman L. Boraker

(My thanks to Mike Kazanjian for this check).

The Mount Wollaston Bank was established in 1853 and received its national bank charter in 1864 as The National Mount Wollaston Bank, No. 517, Quincy, Mass.

Bank officers for the year 1894 were: E.B. Pratt, president and Horace F. Spear, cashier. Capital $150,000. The bank's capital remained the same in 1904 and the officers were: Chas. A. Howland, president and Horace F. Spear still held the position of cashier.



On December 31, 1934, the National Mount Wollaston Bank was placed in voluntary liquidation. During its seventy years in operation as a national bank, the capital was increased from $150,000 to over $400,000. It was succeeded by Norfolk County Trust Co., Brookline, Mass.*

The check illustrated above bears the date line of "Denver, Col., June 13, 1876." The only endorsement is that of the payee, John O. Holden. The check does not bear a rubber stamp showing when the bank made payment, however, the revenue stamp bears the date 6/20/1876 and the initials J.O.H., which evidently was the day Mr. Holden presented it for payment. The check's date makes it a Colo. Terr. item, does it not?

Quincy, Mass. located below Boston ... approximately 2,000 miles from Denver, Colo. Considering the speed trains traveled in those days, layovers, transfers, etc., I think the check made good time to travel that distance, and be presented for payment, in just one week.

Take note of the split banking hours. Was this so bank's books could be posted, or so that employees could have their coffee break, lunch hour and a rest?

ENJOY COCA-COLA CHECKS

by Michael P. Vort-Ronald

Collecting checks is a fascinating and relatively new hobby and gaining in popularity. Collectors find many different areas or themes to pursue and interesting collections need not be expensive.

Coca-Cola checks, for example, could present a real challenge. The company is in 160 countries and has been around since the early 1900's. Just the wide distribution of bottling companies in the United States alone could create a collection larger than most.

According to a publication REMINISCE, Coca-Cola history started in 1886 as a headache cure. An Atlanta druggist and former Confederate officer John Styth Pemberton stirred a dark syrup mixture in a 30-gal. brass kettle hung over a backyard fire.

It was a mixture of various flavors and oils to come up with a flavorful nonalcoholic tonic. He and his bookkeeper called it Coca-Cola, but it wan't the real thing as we know it today.

It was potent and not only a headache cure, but a cure for other ailments, as well. He sold it to drug stores as a "brain and nerve tonic". It came in green pint-sized bottles with instructions to mix it with water. Soon, by accident, someone found that by mixing with soda-jerk soda, it tasted great.

The first bottler was Joseph A. Biedenharn of Vicksburg, MS in 1894.

In 1899, Benjamin F. Thomas and Joseph B. Whitehead of Chattanooga, TN obtained exclusive rights to bottle and sell throughout the United States.

It took 50 years to reach Australia. A 1937 survey concluded that Australians were the world's greatest tea drinkers and even plain water was seldom served.

Business commenced in Sydney in 1937. It took a full week to either give away or sell the first batch of 2,400 bottles. In 1938, another bottling plant was opened in Melbourne. Growth was gradual. In 1939, bottling plants were opened in Brisbane and Adelaide. The declaration of war that year caused a dramatic slowdown in operations. In the first years of the war, sugar rationing, the shortage of bottle tops and the commandeering of company trucks by the army, complicated things. So the company staffs joined the services.

In 1943, American troops arrived and a turnaround was in the making. The parent company and the United States army furnished Coca-Cola to every man in uniform for five cents. The four bottling plants in Australia were recruited to supply American and Australian troops in the Pacific. Sugar rationing didn't stop until the early 1950's but after that production accelerated.

Today there are ten bottling plants in Australia. Nive are owned by Coca-Cola Amatil and one in Darwin owned by Q.U.F. Industries, Inc. Australian operations are owned by Coca-Cola Amatil Limited. They started in 1904 when British Tobacco Co., Ltd. (Australia) was formed to take over a group of small tobacco companies. Five years later they purchased S. T. Leigh & Co., Ltd., a printing company. In 1962, S. T. Leigh became known as Leigh-Mardon Pty. Ltd. Check collectors in Australia would be familiar with that name because of its imprint on a variety of checks. In three years, the company had taken over Perth; Melbourne in 1966, Geelong in 1968 and Brisbane in 1972.

The present name of AMATIL Limited was established in 1977. By 1979, the company's sales exceeded one billion dollars. Vienna, Austria franchises were acquired in 1982. By 1991, they had ten in Austria, the company had expanded into Hungary, Czechoslovakia, South East Asia, Indonesia and Papua, New Guinea. Sales had risen to $1.7 billion.

Today, Australia's favorite soft drink is Coca-Cola. It has come a long way in 55 years and is now consumed at almost 2 million litres a day. With the country's predominantly hot climate, the future of the beverage is no doubt assured.

As indicated, the world-wide scope of Coca-Cola checks could be a lifetime challenge.

I want to thank Coca-Cola Amatil for information and checques supplied, and to my American cheque collecting colleagues for the many interesting Coca-Cola cheques traded for Australian material.

HAPPY FINDINGS AND CONVERSATION PIECES

Richard G. Van Wirdum, one of our members in Australia has written to the Editor:

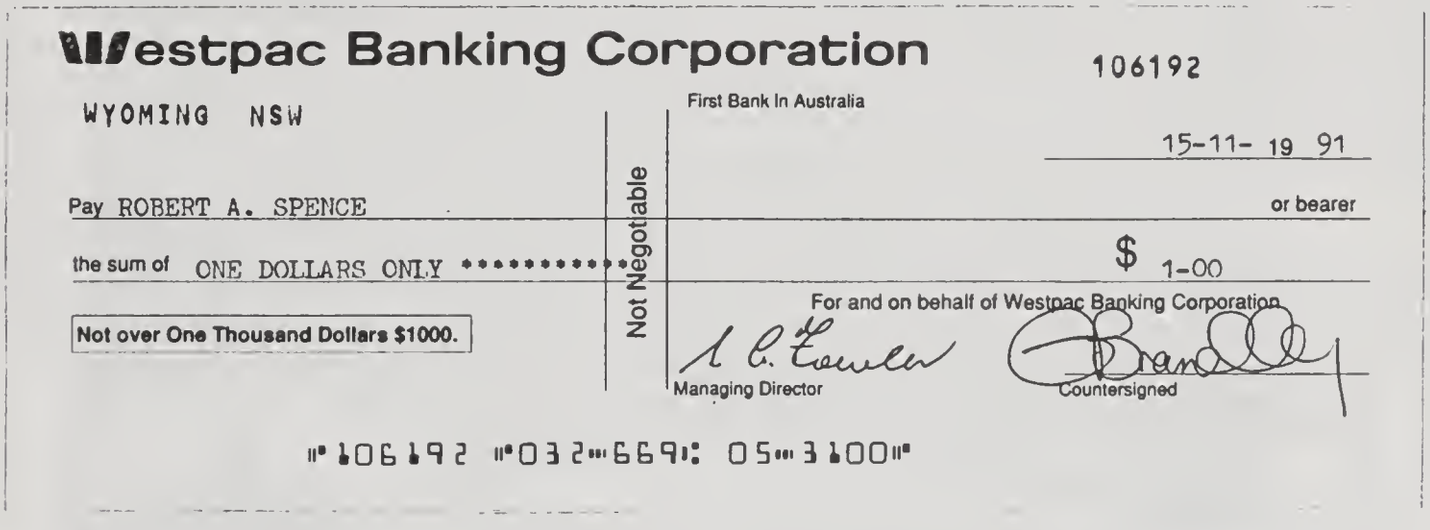
Thought you may be interested in the bank cheque I have sent you. It is from the Westpac Banking Corporation, Wyoming Branch, ...Wyoming, New South Wales, Australia, that is.

I wonder if collectors of cheques in the U.S.A., particularly in the state of Wyoming are aware of the Australian connection.

Westpac Banking Corporation is the largest private bank in Australia. It was founded in 1817 as the Bank of New South Wales, by charter granted by the British Governor of the Colony, Lachlan Macquarie. The bank's first directors were elected on 7th February, 1817. Today, Westpac has more than 1,300 branches and agents around the world.

"Wyoming", just north of the city of Gosford, is situated some 60 miles north of Sydney, the capital of the state of New South Wales, in the beautiful Brisbane Waters. The area was pioneered by timber cutters in the early 1800's, then became famous for its orange orchards. The area opened up in 1888 with the completion of the railway bridge over the Hawkesbury River. The bridge was built by American contractors and the small construction camp was named "Brooklyn" by those American contractors. The bridge became the "Brooklyn Bridge". The town and bridge are still in use today where train travelers can travel to Brooklyn over the Brooklyn Bridge, pass Wyoming and on to Newcastle.

"Wyoming" was named by an Irish immigrant named Frederick Augustus Hely, in 1813. Hely rose to prominence in the community, becoming Principal Superintendent of Convicts for New South Wales, an area now covering the entire eastern side of Australia, including the states of Queensland, New South Wales and Victoria. When Hely died in Sydney in 1836, he was brought to Wyoming at his own request for internment. His vault can still be seen today, just across the road from the Westpac Bank where the cheque you now see started its journey.



Arthur Aron sends in some checks that our readers should find interesting.

The first one is a check on the account of Josiah Lee, a Baltimore dealer in banknotes and specie. This is a high quality, banknote style check which includes some of Mr. Lee's advertising across the bottom.

The second item is an executive warrant signed by Governor Bowie of Maryland in 1869. The piece is interesting both in its own right and in the way it was found. This is one of the first warrants signed by the governor. That is shown in two ways. It is Warrant No. 6. More interesting, though is that written on the warrant is the explanation that it is for, "... services of Naval Band of Music thirty pieces rendered on the day of the Installation of the Governor...".

About fifteen years ago, I was in an area of Kensington, MD, known for its antique shops. I happened to go into a used book store and found a pile of paper on one of the bookshelves. Digging through the papers, I found this warrant. Some years later I was back in that area and I thought I would see what I might find in that bookstore. Unfortunately, it was no longer there, but you never know where you may find good checks.

The next item is not really a check, but it has a format which makes it interesting. It is actually a form of greeting, a Jewish new year's "check" to convey new year's wishes by paying 365 days of "Health, Wealth and Happiness". It was printed in Germany, the style of which appears to be from the 1920's-1930's.

AMERICAN BANK NOTE COMPANY SPECIMEN CHECKS

by Edward N. Lipson

To those who are serious philatelists, the word "SPECIMEN" is well known to them. Stamps that were printed on test papers or in trial colors were frequently overprinted with the words "Specimen". In some cases, the word "Specimen" was perforated through the stamp. The object of this was to render the stamp invalid for postage while preserving the features of the design. At other times, the word "CANCELLED" was applied to the stamp so that it became invalid for postage. Specimen stamps were produced for delivery to the Universal Postal Union at Berne for further distribution to the members of the U.P.U. This was done whenever new stamps were issued so that foreign postal administrations, when receiving letters franked with the new stamps, would know that the issue was not fraudulent.

It would appear from a study of such RN type samples or specimens that exist, that this was the thought that was in mind when a security printer was preparing SAMPLE CHECKS for the purpose of using them in the pursuit of orders. Numerous ways were adopted by various security printers to render a sample check invalid for actual use. Some of the RN dies embodied the word "SAMPLE", some of the dies carried the phrase "INVALID FOR ACTUAL USE" and others printed the word "CANCELLED" in the area of the check normally used for the maker's signature. In any event, the check printers used one of these methods as a means of voiding a check in order to avoid payment of the Federal Tax of 2¢ for which they would be liable if the check were to be issued.

If one were to refer to A HANDBOOK FOR REVENUE STAMPED PAPER by Joseph S. Einstein, Thomas C. Kingsley and W. Richard De Kay, you would find that pages 53 through 88 are devoted to specimen or sample RN imprinted checks that were the work of no less that eight different security printers. Bear in mind that the checks described on these 35 pages are all RN imprinted. Although the work of these eight security printers is described in great detail, is it not rather strange that the work of the AMERICAN BANK NOTE CO. is neither once mentioned or referred to?

The explanation is that there has not been a single RN imprinted check in the hands of the RN imprinted check collector until the recent auction of some materials from the archives of the American Bank Note Co. at Christie's. So far as this writer knows, there were only three RN imprinted specimens in the entire auction. These three items are now being reproduced for the first time in the ASCC's THE CHECK COLLECTOR.

The first specimen is a cashier's check on the First National Bank of Greenfield, Massachusetts. I use the term "Cashier's Check" with some hesitancy inasmuch as some might refer to this financial instrument as a draft. Further, some may refer to this item as a Bill of Exchange. Please observe that the phrase "DUPLICATE UNPAID" appears centered and slightly toward the top. By way of adapting this specimen as a production model, the phrase "in current par funds" is entered with a pen just below the word "Dollars". Also, the rather ornate border has been meticulously cut from the lower left and right corners suggesting to me that the border might be eliminated.

The handwritten word "Specimen" (with underline) appears vertically going upwards and parallel to the sides of the imprinted revenue stamp type B. The American Bank Note Co. New York imprint is above and slightly to the right of the vignette at the left. Until some further evidence is produced, I would have to consider this item to be the earliest known American Bank Note RN specimen. This item shows evidence of having been folded.

The entire face of the second specimen check (above) is overprinted in a very pale orange netting with the exception of the area of the check that shows the phrase "R.L.M. & Co.". The RN imprint on this check is type D in orange. The name of the user "Robert L. Maitland & Co." is imprinted in the user panel at the left end of the check and is obviously to be drawn on the Merchants National Bank of New York. A large circle is cut out of the center of the RN/D imprint thus making the 2¢ imprinted revenue stamp invalid. A hand stamp, in purple, and reading "Specimen" also appears on the check. This item also shows evidence of having been folded. The folds in this and the previous item (specimen type B) would indicate that these two items were folded so that they could go into a pocket while being carried. The large die punch hole in the imprinted stamp would indicate to me a two-fold purpose. It would render the check invalid for actual use and could have served as the means of the American Bank Note Company's getting a 2¢ redemption refund for each such check from the Internal Revenue Service. The phrase "STAMP REDEEMED" is seen frequently on the RN imprinted checks and stock certificates.

Specimen RN Type D

This check on the Chase National Bank appears to have been intended for use by The American Bank Note Co. which in itself makes it interesting. The RN imprint is type G and is die cut through the imprinted RN type G in similar fashion to that of the Type D check previously described. Also, as in the case of the type D check, a purple hand stamp reading "Specimen" has been applied to the check. There is no reference whatsoever to the American Bank Note Co. on the check other than that which appears in the engraved name tablet in vertical form at the left end of the check. The other information relative to the die cut circular punch hold and the hand stamp mentioned relative to the type D check applies to this type G imprinted check as well.

THE BLACKSTONE CANAL AND BANK

by M. S. Kazanjian

One of the early methods of transportation in the United States was by canal. The most famous canal in the middle part of the 19th century was the Erie Canal in upstate New York. A lesser known canal was located in the Blackstone Valley in Rhode Island and south central Massachusetts. The Blackstone Canal was constructed between the years 1824 to 1828. It was designed to be the main route for goods to be transported from central Massachusetts to Providence, which at that time was a major seaport. It was also designed to compete with the lucrative market trade in Boston.

The Blackstone Canal was first envisioned in the early part of the 19th century by several local Rhode Island merchants. Lead by Edward Carrington, these merchants hired Benjamin Wright to look into the feasibility of a canal. Wright gained fame for his work on the Erie Canal several years before. The forty-five mile canal was opened in Octonber of 1828 and continued in operation for several years. Only the advent of the railroads caused its demise. The two main railroads that competed with the canal were the Providence and Worcester Railroad and the Boston and Albany Railroad.

The Blackstone Canal Bank was opened in 1831 to act in cooperation with the canal. The bank continued in operation until it became the Blackstone Canal National Bank in 1865.

In Figure 5 (right) is a receipt from the Providence and Worcester, dated 1856, one of the railroads that was a chief competitor of the canal. The shipping charge for the twelve bales of cotton was $3.60 by rail, apparently much cheaper than sending them by the canal!

A GUIDE TO CHECK COLLECTING - IV

by Robert A. Spence

When two check collectors meet, the first question generally asked is "What do you collect?". Because check collecting offers such wide scope and depth of a historical period of about two hundred years, each collector is always hopeful that the other collects checks in areas in which both have common interest.

The same hope arises when a collector finds a batch of checks available at a show, a dealer or another collector.

It has been observed that many collections mirror the personality of the collector. To which may be added the reflections of, time available for the hobby and the personal circumstances of the collector. One fact that eventually becomes clear to a check collector is that there is so very much which can be collected. Many "lucky" collectors are those who always examine a check with a sort of patterned procedure, even if the check appears to have been examined by many others.

Another question generally asked is "What do you look for in a check?". Looking at a check is like looking through a window at an event that took place in history at a time that was precisely dated by the check. Some windows provide little or no view and some provide a view that can interest one by the many objects and details that are observed. It is the same with checks. A plain, ordinary appearing check seems to be unable to provide much of interest. Other checks may provide a beautiful appearance and be full of details. A vignette may tell a tale. The bank name may be one that is well-known among collectors. The revenue stamp may appear to merit further examination, because it appears to be different. The names written on the check may set us thinking and merit further research. The location given may identify a territory, a prominent or historical place, or bring to mind a well-known moment in history.

Like a plain old portrait or picture that is untitled or unknown, upon recognition or identification of the portrait or picture, it becomes of much greater interest. A plain, simple check bearing the signature of a famous person is of interest immediately. Just one feature of an otherwise very common check. So, no matter how plain and uninteresting a check may at first appear, a careful collector will do well to give it an inspection for desirable features.

Since no two checks are absolutely identical and there are countless widely varying designs and text on checks, a collector will find it very useful to develop an order of steps to be followed in the examination of checks. Every check has certain basic items that appear and make it a check. Those other items that are observed on a check are what serve to make it of greater interest and desirability.

Checks should be viewed in good light. A magnifying glass will help with smudged or indistinct inscriptions. The check should be held up to a good light source to disclose watermarks, extent and location of cuts, tears, creases, cut cancellations and perforations. Water and other stains can be observed. The check should be viewed for eye appeal and its general overall condition observed. If a check merits further consideration, and a collector is serious about buying the check, an examination of details of the check should be made.

The following is one way to review a check:

- The bank, branch, or alteration of name.
- Location - city, state, territory and any alteration of same.
- Date.
- The amount of the check in figures and words and if payment is designated.
- Payment to "bearer" or "order" and if altered.
- Revenue stamps, adhesive or imprinted.
- Vignettes, logos or "embellishments".
- Signatures on the check. Also, endorsements on the back.
- Types of paid markings, cancellations and perforations.
- Security printer.
- Serial numbers on check and bank routing numbers.
- Colors of paper and inks.
- Stampings of bank tellers and endorsements.
- Security features, including embossed patterns, additional writing of amount of the check and any patented features.
- Indenting of edges of a check and if a panel design is provided at the left edge to receive the indentation.

Let us take three checks acquired at convention bourses and examine them.

In Figure 1 is shown a check of 1870 drawn on the Merchants Bank of New Bedford, MA. New Bedford in earlier days was a prominent whaling port. The Merchants Bank had become a national bank within a decade of the writing of the check and the locally printed check shows a vignette of a sailor and a shipfitter against a background of sailing and steam vessels - a transition period. The adhesive revenue stamp, No. R-5c, has not been cancelled as required by law. The pay to "or bearer" has been altered to "or order" which style was being used more and more on commercial checks such as this. The check is printed in grey on a tan paper and bears two Geneva cross-type cut cancellations. It would be a very attractive check except that the lower right hand quadrant of the check is water stained. An interesting check, but not a top grade one.

Figure 2 shows another commercial check of 1871 drawn by Rand, McNally & Co. on Lunt, Preston & Kean, Bankers, Chicago, IL. Rand, McNally & Co.is remembered as a prominent map making company. It is noted that the Rand, McNally & Co. name appears on the signature line as drawer of the check; is also inscribed in the left edge panel to customize the check; and is also indicated as the security printer who printed the check. The check is made payable to A. McNally, Esq., an apparently named connection to the firm. An RN-C1 imprint is an attractive feature of this check which has black lettering and a brick red left panel on a tan paper. The penmanship adds to the appearance of this check. This check may be considered a good regular check for a collector.

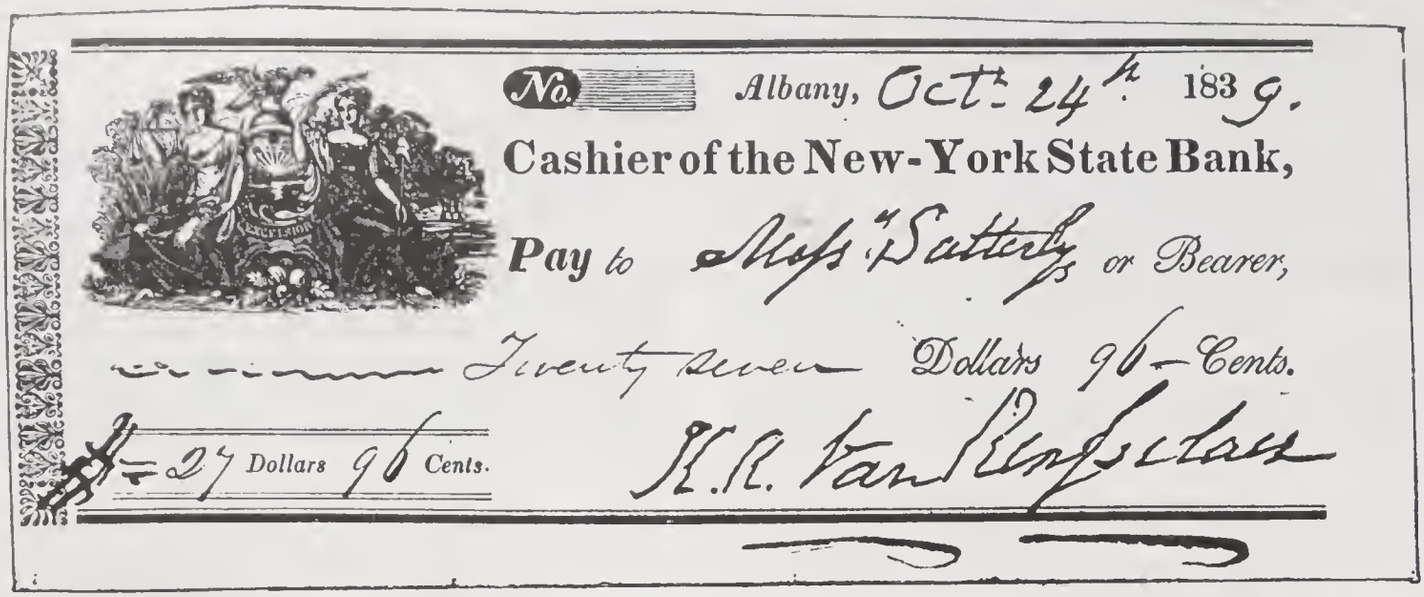
CHICAGO October 4 1871
LUNT, PRESTON & KEAN, BANKERS,
PAY TO A. McNally Esq. OR ORDER,
One Hundred Fifty Two 60/100 DOLLARS,
$152 60
Rand McNally & Co.
Rand, McNally & Co., Printers, 51 Clark St., Chicago.



No.
Albany, Oct. 24th 1839.
Cashier of the New-York State Bank,
Pay to Messrs. Satterlys or Bearer,
Twenty seven Dollars 96 Cents.
$27 96 Dollars 96 Cents.
K. K. Van Renssalaer

Another check which may catch the eye is an early-vignetted one of 1839, drawn on the Cashier of the New York State Bank. The vignette is a variation of the seal of the State of New York. The thin left edge panel was provided for possible indenting of that edge, a custom which seemed to have died out about a decade or so before the check was written.

The handwriting attracts attention because the date, the payee and the drawer were written in one hand in black-brown ink, while the amount of the check in words and figures is filled in by another hand in blue ink, perhaps a secretary or aide. The check is made out to Messrs. Satterlys or Bearer, and the use of the ancient long "S" is noted. But then we come to the signature, K. K. Van Renssalaer. Sounds like early New York - New Amsterdam. A trip to the local library to search for information was successful. Killian Killian Van Renssalaer attended Yale; studied and practiced law; was a private secretary to General Philip Schuyler; was a member of the U. S. House of Representatives from New York in the 7th - 11th Congresses. He died in Albany, NY. From the dates, it is evident K. K. Van Renssalaer drew this check after he had retired from Congress and the wavering signature indicates the infirmities of advanced age. Here is indeed a very interesting and desirable check for the collector who likes our early history - a bit of early America by one who was distinguished and prominent in his time.

Once again, it is found that early checks of this period, 150 years ago, were generally written by important and prominent persons of means. Some biographical information is generally to be found. What one looks for on a check is what may be ascertained and revealed by inspection, research and a happy interest in check collecting.

Another question asked by collectors, especially beginners, is "Where can I look for checks?". Checks are being located in surprisingly new places. A new collector should first become familiar with what is being offered in the general market. Conventions and shows of coin, stamp and paper money dealers have been good sources for checks. Ads in The Check Collector should be carefully studied and price lists may be obtained in your areas of interest.

Auctions and mail bids are good sources for other than common checks. Careful attention to the terms of sale is a necessity. Stamp clubs and coin clubs are sometimes good places to obtain checks. Stamp dealers who sell a revenue stamp collector a single copy of an imprinted stamp on a check are often surprised when a check collector selects several checks with the same imprinted stamp, because the bank, vignette or general check design is different.

Trading checks with other collectors can be a source of some checks. Do review the article "On Exchanging Checks Between Collectors" in Issue 2, page 9, of The Check Collector before embarking on this course.

Remember, checks are financial documents and if one is very patient, collectors of other collectibles will be found who have checks which may be obtained. Antique shows and flea markets do turn up checks, but their pricing at times may be very much higher than other sources.

A check collector can use the resources available as a member of our Society for help in locating checks. If it is possible to attend a Round Table meeting of ASCC, acquaintances will be made with collectors and dealers that will greatly help to enjoy check collecting. And the best suggestion of all is to take part in the ASCC activities. Check collectors do help one another.

Happy collecting!

AROUND THE HOBBY

The Convention will be held June 19, 20 and 21 and the A.S.C.C. meeting will be held on Saturday, June 20 at 1:00 p.m. Dick Naven will chair the meeting and can be reached at 6802 SW 33rd Pl., Portland, OR 97219, or telephone (503) 245-3659.

The International Paper Money Show will be held at the Cook Convention Center, Memphis, TN, on June 19, 20 and 21.

The 101st Anniversary Convention of the American Numismatic Association will be held August 12-16, 1992 at the Orange County Convention Center, Orlando, FL. An A.S.C.C. Board of Directors meeting will be held at 9:00 a.m. on August 13 and a Round Table Meeting for members will be held at 10:00 a.m. on August 13.

The 10th Annual ATCO National Token and Medal Show will be held September 5 and 6, at the Holiday Inn, I-80 & 72nd, Omaha, NE. Checks will be offered at the show by many dealers and collectors. Information: George Hosek, 7411 Idledale Lane, Omaha, NE. (402) 455-1905.

Check collecting was well represented among the exhibits at the Annual F.U.N. Convention in Orlando, FL last January. Ed Schuman had a 2-case exhibition on "The Jacobs Family, Arizona's First Bankers". He also presented an exhibit of "Emergency Money Used in Palestine." It included checks of the Anglo-Palestine Bank. John O'Hare had an interesting exhibit on "Early American Checks, an Introduction to Financial History".

Ed Lipson had an informational exhibit of checks on check collecting at the World Columbian Stamp Exposition at the Rosemont O'Hare Exposition Center, Chicago, IL on May 22-31. This is the philatelic event of 1992.

Vallejo held its first A.S.C.C. Round Table Meeting at the April 26 Vallejo Coin Show, Vallejo, CA. Though a small group of members and guests attended, this meeting could be the forerunner of more check collector meetings in the future.

A new publication "Western Places", covering the Western mainland states will cover what was there then - and what is there now of towns, river ports, stage stops, ferries, market centers, etc. Great for background details. Information: The Depot, P.O. Box 2093, Lake Grove, OR 97035.

Considerable interest in being shown about the Directory of Members to be issued shortly. Just the help needed to start check collectors Round Table meetings in areas where a half dozen or more members are located.

I should like to say I am sorry for the slow response to those who have sent in items and written to me. Due to an illness and then being away exhibiting on the show circuit, I have been hard pressed for time the last several months. Things should now be quiet for me until November, when everything starts over again.

Your donation of checks to the ASCC Check Pool are greatly appreciated and I hop you all keep them coming. Items for the Cehck Pool maybe sent to me at 4279 Garand Lane, West Palm Beach, FL 33406.

Happy Check Collecting,
